Introduction

Adventurous Learning Energy Conserving

After the joyful celebration of the 150th Anniversary of the school, Sacred Heart Canossian College was ready to embark on another adventurous journey to continue the mission of love of the Canossian Sisters through providing an all-round education of Christian virtues and Formation of the Heart. With over a century-old experience, we are confident to empower our youngsters to be women of integrity and versatility with global awareness.

The theme 'Emmanuel' – 'God is with us' – permeated the religious activities throughout the year. Such is adopted in view of the conflicting values this ever-changing society endorses. It is time students learned to open their heart to God and to be more aware of His presence in their lives. Academic-wise, they were encouraged to be adventurous learners who could map out their learning journey. Civic-minded-wise, the students were entrusted with full responsibility in implementing energy-conserving on school campus and elsewhere.

To prepare our students to be life-long learners, the school has been focusing, in the recent years, on grooming them into becoming autonomous learners. This year, the emphases were formative assessment and giving students specific feedback. These adjustments in learning and teaching would inform students of what to improve and how to do so. At the same time, the Self-access Learning Centre (SALC) was entrusted with the task to further develop students' generic study skills and extended writing skills to support their success in other subjects. Self-assess Content and Language Integrated Learning (CLIL) resources were in place to facilitate students' autonomous learning.

This second year of the implementation of the New Senior Secondary School Education continued to witness the efforts of the staff to address learner diversity and to enhance students' higher order thinking skills. Besides the school-based staff development programmes on questioning techniques and special educational needs, departmental and inter-departmental lesson observations also rendered valuable opportunities for our teaching staff to refine their learning and teaching strategies. Overseas and local professional exchange further enabled them to develop new initiatives in Differentiated Instruction.

In addition, our teachers have also made conscious and concerted effort to integrate green elements into the subject curriculum, as green education has always been a key concern of Sacred Heart Canossian College. The weekly sharing of the green tips by the green prefects gave many practical guidelines for students to live a green life. The installation of a photovoltaic system (PV system) on the rooftop of the classroom block in 2010 was yet another attempt to promote environmental education and to introduce sustainable source of energy in school.

Besides caring for Nature, our students continued to share their love with people in need through various service projects and opportunities. Representatives of our Student Council Eclore, in particular, went to Nepal to follow up on the progress of the Child-care Centre Project which was partly financed by the fund-raising efforts of the previous Student Council cabinets. We believe that learning through service is an important element in the formation of the heart. Therefore, students are strongly encouraged to have an in-depth reflection on their service experiences.

Being global citizens, students are provided with enormous opportunities to explore subject matters through F6 extended learning programmes and other cultural exchanges. At the same time, students were encouraged to be adventurous learners. This summer, the School Choir will take part in 1st World Choir Championships for Youth and Young Adults in Austria. Likewise, a group of student leaders have taken up the challenge of organising the Fifth Canossian Global Youth Conference, catering the interests of 100 delegates from different parts of the world. It is never easy to be an adventurous and autonomous learner, yet, we hope the seed has been sown. It is our earnest desire that the seed will grow, blossom and bear abundant fruits one day.

2010-11 has been another festive year to witness the unity of the Sacred Heart Community. Sacred Heartists, from kindergarten to secondary, past and present, united to make the twenty-million 150th Anniversary Project a reality. The first phase of the project is expected to be completed by the end of August 2011. The provision of more classrooms allows the school to meet the demand of the double-cohort year. The second phase, which is expected to be completed by the end of 2012, will provide us with an auditorium with more up-dated lighting and audio-visual equipment for Performing Arts experiences. By that time, the new Information Technology Centre will also be established. With these additions, students can select resources that best suit their learning interests and needs. This is definitely a big move towards our goal of cultivating learner autonomy among our students.

We are blessed by the good Lord with very dedicated past students, committed colleagues, caring parents and dynamic students who never tire of working for the betterment of the school and the community, the well-being of one-self and the people around. With deep gratitude, we would continue to look up to our Exemplar Jesus Christ, undertake the challenge of the mission entrusted to us and accompany our students with the same love of His Sacred Heart.

School Management

School-based management was implemented in our school since 1992.

Management & Organization

KPM 1 - Stakeholders' perception of School Management

| | | School Year | Mean | S.D. | Effect size |
|-----|---|----------------|------|------|-------------|
| | The average score of teachers' perception | 2008/09 | 4.1 | 0.7 | Very large |
| 1.1 | of School Management | 2009/10 | 4.0 | 0.8 | Very large |
| | | 2010/11 | 4.0 | 0.5 | Very large |

In accordance with the new phase of the School Development and Accountability Framework, 'Effect Size' has been added to the reports on Key Performance Measures and the Stakeholder Survey on the ESDA in order to facilitate schools to analyse the data. 'Effect Size' is used to gauge the difference between the means of two sets of variables. Standard Deviation will be used to determine the magnitude of the difference indicating the strength of the effect. It can be represented by the following formula:

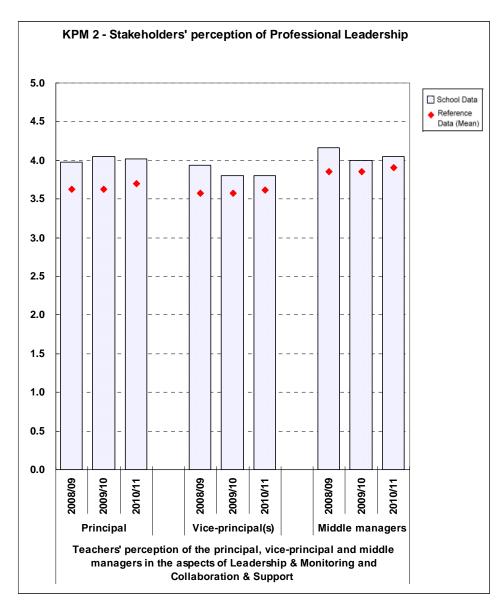

Effect Size = | MeanS - MeanR | / SD

MeanS is the mean of the school data; MeanR is the mean of the norm or the reference data; SD is the Standard Deviation of the norm or the reference data. When 'Effect Size' is 0, there is no difference between the two means. The greater the value of 'Effect Size' it becomes, the greater and the more significant the difference it makes. According to the value of 'Effect Size', the strength of the effect can be classified in the following table:

| Effect Size | Description |
|-------------|-------------|
| < 0.20 | Negligible |
| 0.20 - 0.49 | Small |

Major Concerns 2010-2011

Major Concern 1: Green Education - Energy Conservation and Healthy Diet

Achievements

- All departments incorporated topics related to energy conservation, healthy diet and low carbon lifestyle in their curriculums. More in-depth discussions were held during lessons with reference to related topics and issues.
- Conservation practices such as giving e-assignments were formed in the distribution of L&T materials. Other information was disseminated through e-mail and school web page.
- Installation of solar panel was completed and solar energy has become an energy source of the school.
- Hygrometers were installed in all classrooms and special rooms. With the guidelines on the use of air-conditioners, students' concepts of energy conservation were enhanced.
- Green Diet Week, jointly organised by Green Torch, Health Education Team and Home Economics Department, received active responses from students.
- Joyful Fruit Day and a photo-taking competition were held in Green Diet Week. Joyful Fruit Day created opportunities for students to share their favourite fruits with teachers and classmates. In the photo-taking competition, images related to healthy diet and green lifestyle were captured and used to produce postcard-size message cards for students to write their words of appreciation to their friends and teachers.
- Various talks on energy conservation and environmental protection were organised.
- Green Prefects arranged weekly sharing of green tips during the morning assembly.
- Students formed the habit of bringing their own reusable water bottles, containers and cutlery for lunch, school picnic and Christmas party. Attention to the use of recycled materials was emphasized in all extra-curricular activities.
- Concerns about nutritional values were listed among the major priorities in the selection of new lunch box supplier.

Reflection

- Students' concept of "use less" could be further enhanced.
- Application of ideas learnt from the talks could be encouraged.
- Data on the use of energy generated by our solar panel could be presented to raise students' awareness of the usefulness of renewable energy.
- Constant reminders on recycling paper, metal and plastics should be given throughout the school year.
- More healthy food with low fat content and fresh fruits should be included in the lunch box menu.

Major Concern 2: Learning & Teaching - Adventurous Learning

Achievements

- Bonus marks system was introduced to all departments to provide students extrinsic encouragement to answer challenging questions.
- The NSS curriculum led to more diverse lesson plans with various learning activities on social issues that encouraged and increased peer interaction and feedback.
- Specific oral and written feedbacks given in different forms of formative assessment enabled students to make further improvement on their academic performance.
- Peer questioning and feedback sessions provided opportunities for students to appreciate the questions raised by others.
- Peer lesson observations allowed teachers to share their teaching practices and exchange ideas on giving specific feedback.
- Students were ready to take up challenges and explore different areas of interest.
- The second stage of SALC project was launched.
- Peer sharing sessions on Staff Development Day created an occasion for teachers to share good examples and comment on each other's specific feedback strategies.
- School-based staff development programmes focusing on questioning skills and giving specific feedback were organised. Guest speakers were invited to conduct workshops on Staff Development Day to introduce various questioning techniques to arouse students' interests and increase their participation in classroom learning.

Reflection

- Higher order thinking in the NSS curriculum reflected students' need for acquiring related learning and study skills.
- More teacher guidance could be given to students to further cultivate their questioning habits, which help them understand complicated issues that require higher level thinking skills.
- Teachers may allow more time for students to work on their assignments so that they can try their best and enhance the effectiveness of their learning through the process.
- Teachers may introduce more topics of students' interests that are also related to their daily lives.
- The school may conduct assemblies to explain the importance of learner autonomy.
- "Language across curriculum" needs to be further strengthened to make students become motivated learners in different subject areas.
